Laying of Cornerstone for Camp Grayling Chapel

(Special to Avalanche)

One of "the two most important things in the world" is going to take place this week at Camp Grayling.

Well anyway, that's the admittedly biased viewpoint of Michigan National Guard Staff Chaplain Harold A. Kirchenbauer when he talks about the Camp Grayling Memorial Chapel. The cornerstone is to be laid Thursday, at 4:00 p. m.

The cornerstone ceremony which is to be attended by Michigan Lt. Governor James H. Brickley, Brigadier General Carson R. Neifert, deputy commanding general for Army, Kirchenbauer, and other dignitaries, along with the 46th Army Band, will represent the kickoff of the final fund drive for the multi-faith, indoor-outdoor chapel.

The only one of its kind in the nation, Camp Grayling's chapel is slated to cost $175,000—the price includes $50,000 worth of inflation between the original estimated cost and the price tag in today's dollars, Kirchenbauer said.

Another one-of-a-kind factor in the structure will be the cornerstone itself.

Something related to the history-making Apollo 15 space flight—Kirchenbauer won't say what—is to be among the moments.

The cornerstone laying represents the culmination of more than three years of time and effort aimed at providing a religious center for National Guardsmen.

The road hasn't been without its rough spots.

The way Kirchenbauer tells it, there was initially a little problem with funding, namely none of it.

Requests were made to the state and federal government for money and to date, no revenues have been forthcoming from either.

Finally, Kirchenbauer decided that "we should either build the chapel or quit talking about it."

The chaplain wrote to Major General Clarence C. Schnipke to get the chapel concept either killed or implemented.

"The interest expressed by commanders, officers, and enlisted men over a period of many years still remains at a very high level in spite of the discouraging effect of failure to gain the necessary budget support to build a chapel facility," Col. Kirchenbauer wrote.

"The moral and spiritual climate of our country demands immediate action. We can no longer assume that the basic ideals and values of our nation, morally and spiritually, will survive with aggressive action on our part to teach, practice and preserve them now."

The chaplain's letter stimulated a communication from Major General Schnipke to Brigadier General Neifert. The message:

"Ever since the first National Guard units trained at Camp Grayling in 1914, there has been a requirement for a post chapel. With almost 30,000 Guardsmen from three states now training yearly at Camp Grayling, the requirement is even greater."

General Schnipke appointed General Neifert as chairman of the building committee.

Fund raising originally consisted of special collections taken at chapel services at summer camp and at armories across the state.

A finance committee, headed by Retired Col. Robert Angell, solicited funds from various state foundations. It was this committee which has accumulated the bulk of the money for the chapel.

Other contributions rolled in from Indiana and Ohio National Guard units.

Col. Kirchenbauer said even the large contributions for the chapel were in some way National.

Two Local Ladies Finish CMU Workshop

Mrs. Harry Souders and Mrs. Roy Wedge have just completed a Michigan History and Genealogy workshop held at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant. This was a renewal of their certificates for Librarians. This must be renewed every three years to be eligible to work in public libraries in the State of Michigan.

Mrs. Souders states, "we are still compiling the second volume of Crawford County History and if anyone has any letters, papers or articles pertaining to our county we would like to include this in our book. The first volume is at the Michigan State Library to be microfilmed as a lasting record. It will then go to the Clark Historical Library at Mt. Pleasant and be recorded there. It will then be returned to us for reference reading in our library."

Governor Reviews Troops

(Special to Avalanche)

Pomp and ceremony, awards, and an address by Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken highlighted the annual review and memorial service of the Michigan Army National Guard at Camp Grayling Friday, August 6.

The review and memorial service, conducted Friday afternoon instead of the traditional middle Saturday of annual training this year to allow Guardsmen a full weekend to enjoy northern Michigan, featured all 82-hundred men of the Michigan Army National Guard for the first time in four years. Since a reorganization of the Michigan Guard several years ago resulted in a non-divisional structure, with a separate brigade as a part of the 38th Infantry Division with headquarters in Indiana; the Michigan Guard, in recent years, had held its annual field training duty at two separate times during the summer. This year, the Michigan Guard was all back together again.

Reviewing officials, in addition to Governor Milliken, included Major General Clarence C. Schnipke, Commanding General of the Michigan National Guard. Other officials on the reviewing stand included U. S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, a number of Michigan state senators and representatives, retired Guard officers, and civilian guests from state offices in Lansing and the city of Grayling. Brigadier General Carson R. Neifert, Deputy Commanding General of the Michigan Army National Guard, served as commander of troops for the review which included a "trooping of the line" of units by the Governor, General Schnipke, and other officials and officers in especially equipped military jeeps, presentation of military awards, a memorial service for deceased Guardsmen, a speech by the Governor, a passing in review of ground units of the Guard, and a flyover of military aircraft of the 38th Aviation Battalion. Among the units passing before the reviewing stand were a group of "inner city" youths from Detroit attending the annual Boys Camp of the Michigan National Guard and a group of junior ROTC cadets from Detroit area high schools who received an orientation to active military life during the past week.

Awards presented by the Governor during the ceremony were the Eisenhower Trophy, the Stewart Medal, the Military Reporting Award and the Military Photography Award.

The Eisenhower Trophy, presented each year to the most outstanding company or battery sized unit of the Michigan National Guard, was won by Company C, 107th Engineer Battalion, with headquarters in Wells, Mich., and commanded by Captain Bernard J. Mainville of Kingsford.

The Stewart Medal, presented annually to the individual enlisted man of the Michigan Army National Guard judged to be most outstanding in military appearance, bearing and knowledge of basic military subjects was won by First Sergeant Alfred J. Harrow of Company A, 1st Battalion (Mechanized), 225th Infantry of Detroit. He is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Willi Schulz of 609 Plum, Grayling. The first runner up in the Stewart Medal competition was Specialist Fifth Class Gary F. Falkenstein of Detachment 1, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, 246 Armor, Three Rivers. Second runner up was Private First Class Charles J. Guziak of the 144th Military Police Company, Owosso and honorable mention in the competition went to Specialist Fourth Class Dennis J. Forslund, Company B, 107th Engineer Battalion, Ironwood and Iron River.

The Military Reporting Award, co-sponsored by the Michigan Army National Guard and the National Guard Association of Michigan was won by the Jackson Citizen Patriot newspaper of Jackson. Accepting the award on behalf of the publication was Glenn Atkin of the Citizen Patriot staff.

The annual memorial ceremony, to honor Michigan National Guardsmen who have passed away since the last annual field training period, was conducted by National Guard chaplains and included a reading of the roster of honored dead, a moment of silent tribute, memorial prayer, and memorial address by the Governor.

Dixieland Band To Appear At Chief Shoppenagons Aug. 12

The New Reformation Dixieland Band of Saginaw will be in Grayling for a one night appearance in the Pioneer Room of the Chief Shoppenagons Motor Hotel, Thursday, Aug. 12th, starting at 9:30 p.m.

Origin of the 7-piece group was somewhat unusual. The Rev. Gary Miller, minister of the First Congregational Church in Saginaw, thought it would be interesting to conduct a dixieland service in his church.

He contacted his friend and musical associate, Dave Oppermann, and through their efforts they hand picked five men whom they knew were well schooled in the sounds of traditional dixieland.

AuSable Study Funds Approved

LANSING — Gov. William G. Milliken announced last Thursday that grants totaling $173,900 have been approved for a two-year study of the AuSable River Watershed to determine the problems between campers, fishermen, canoeists and property owners.

"The study is urgently needed to establish compatible use standards for various types of recreation on one of our best and most economically significant watersheds," said Milliken. "The problem of conflicting uses on many streams in the Great Lakes region has been

County - City Share In Hwy. Funds

Lansing — Second quarter Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections are being distributed to Michigan counties, cities and villages, The State Highway Commission reports.

State Highway Director Henrik E. Stafseth said net receipts of the fund during April, May and June of 1971 amounted to $91,275,495, an increase of $4,129,009, or 4.7 per cent, compared to the same three months of 1970.

All state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes and license plate fees go to the Motor Vehicle Highway Fund. The money is distributed after deduction of collection costs, 1.5 per cent of gasoline taxes to the State Waterways Commission and other fixed costs.

The Department of State Highways receives 46 per cent of net proceeds, the 83 counties receive 34 per cent and the 529 cities and villages, 20 per cent. Under this formula, the Highway Department will receive $41,986,728 as its share of second quarter collections. The counties will receive $31,033,668 and the incorporated cities and villages $18,255,099.

Crawford County's share is $124,823.00 compared to $116,669 in 1970. The City of Grayling received $7,276.00 compared to $6,948.00 in 1970.

surfacing for more than a decade. Tourism is our most important industry in northern Michigan and we hope by cooperative management involving both public and private institutions will insure the perpetuity to such valuable resources as the AuSable River," he said.

The Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission will fund $133,200 of the project, while the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will spend $36,700 and the department of commerce $4,000 on the study.

The DNR will gather information to determine the relationships between human development and the effects on water quality and stream bank erosion. The commerce department will measure the area's economic impact from recreation and the Northeast Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission will provide data on geography, land use, recreation sites, soil types and development zones.

SURPRISE... OF A LIFETIME

As old as childhood itself is the game of surprise.

"Close your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy places his precious gift on the table.

"Now, open your eyes, Mommy!" And Jimmy watches rapturously for the flash of surprise on Mother's face.

But surprise isn't always a game. Parents whose eyes were closed to their own and their children's deepest needs have often beheld the shambles which religious indifference can make of promising youth.

The essential duty of parents is to provide thorough religious instruction for their children... and its natural ally, parental example.

The Church is enriching the spiritual life of millions of families. But your Jimmy's opportunity for religious training and a Christian home depends on how much you SEE of his soul's need -- and yours.

Going Down The Drain

Placement services and company personnel offices are using the word "overqualified" to describe the position of more and more professional people, such as scientists and engineers, who have been affected by federal cutbacks in defense-aerospace spending as well as retrenchment in certain industries.

When these highly-trained people apply in desperation for lower-paying jobs, demanding less skills and education, they and their prospective employers are confronted with an immediate dilemma. In the words of the Columbia, Tennessee, Herald: "If an 'overqualified' person finds a lesser job, he can no longer devote all his time to seeking employment in his own field. And the man who hires him is fearful that he will leave just as soon as a better-paying job comes along. It's as though a plug had been pulled on the economy, and a lot of talent is going down the drain."

They Should Wonder

As more 18-year-olds exercise their right to vote, they may begin to wonder about those social security "contributions" that are taken from them by law each month so that government can provide for their well-being nearly 50 years from now. They might well wonder about the thousands upon thousands of dollars of their earnings that they are told by politicians are to be put into some vague fund to help care for them in their old age. A lot can happen in 50 years. The rules can change. Inflation can wipe out the dollar. The "establishment", which helps to pay the taxes that keep the welfare state going, might succumb to the attacks of its adversaries and so on.

Whatever happens, the 18-year-olds who are starting to vote now are destined to bear a substantial portion of the cost. As this fact begins to sink home, politicians could well find promises of a sweet life at the other fellow's expense — namely the younger generation — a mighty poor vote getter.

Hello, Michigan.

TOTAL gasoline is here. With over 600 stations throughout the state.

TOTAL is one of the largest international petroleum companies in the world. We've sold gasoline for over 46 years in 54 countries of the world. You name it. TOTAL has probably made it run. In the Sahara. Or in a rain forest. Or a Grand Prix.

In every country a problem. In 54 countries the TOTAL solution. Now our greatest challenge: America. And with all of our experience around the globe, we are ready.

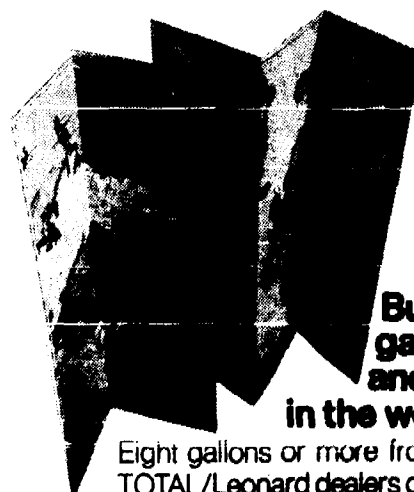

The three blends of gasoline we've formulated for America are the products of years and miles of testing. Grand TOTAL for premium performance. TOTAL Regular for maximum mileage. And TOTAL Low-Lead, sold at many Leonard stations throughout Michigan, priced lower than TOTAL Regular.

So stop in at any of our new TOTAL/Leonard stations and say hello. Our experienced U.S. dealers know gasoline as well as anyone in America. And now they know our international secrets, too. No other dealers can offer you such worldly service.

We honor all major oil credit cards.

With any major oil company credit card, Master Charge or BankAmericard, you can charge gas and oil at TOTAL. You can also use any of these cards to get a TOTAL Travel Card.

Buy our gasoline and we throw in the world, FREE.

Eight gallons or more from participating TOTAL/Leonard dealers gets you a Rand-McNally world map. A full-size (52" x 34") full-color standard reference map with a $1.00 retail value.

LIVING- AS YOU LIKE IT

...and get more from the GOOD YEARS

What do you do about the cost of living when you are retired and have a fixed income? The answer is simple. You adjust—just as you adjusted during the many working years. You adjust your thinking and spending habits and, specifically, your standard of living.

If you have always lived within your working income, you will be able to survive on a retirement income—with adjustments. You may not be able to trade cars as often. You might have to trade in your cruiser for a fishing boat. But, if you know what you have, what you have coming in, and what the essentials (housing, utilities, food, etc.) will cost regularly, it's simple arithmetic to determine whether or not some adjustments need to be made.

Pre-retirement planning, of course, is of great importance. You should be prepared, if necessary, to make proper adjustments immediately after retirement.

For most, the adjustment comes relatively easy. Some retirees discover for the first time, perhaps, that there are work expenses as well as work pay—things like clothes, transportation, union dues or professional dues, office or plant contributions to charities or gifts. These items, small they may be, can add to an impressive sum.

You can live for less in the retirement years.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Dad And George
Were Gyped

By Jim Fitzgerald

Make way for youth. And all that jazz. But sometimes it gives me a pang. Not a pain; a pang. You get a pang in the neck. The pang pings your heart.

The other day Mark Beltaire, the Detroit Free Press columnist, wrote about short railroads. He mentioned the Port Huron and Detroit Railroad which, he said, is privately owned by George and Jim Duffy of Port Huron.

I stopped reading in mid-paragraph so as to indulge in some incriminating nostalgia. About 30 years ago, I delivered newspapers to George Duffy's home in Port Huron. He was my best customer because he always paid several weeks in advance. The charge was 20 cents a week but, when Duffy owed 20 cents he'd give me a buck so I wouldn't bother him again for five weeks. But he never marked a calendar and he had a poor memory. I'd come back in three weeks, or whenever I was broke, and he'd give me another buck for five more weeks. And then I'd be back in three more weeks and so on . . .

I didn't consider this stealing. Stealing was copying dimes from your mother's purse, which I also did. But with Duffy, I simply owed him some newspapers. I figured that some day I'd be flush and I'd skip collecting from him for several months, but keep delivering papers, until my route book balanced. But I still haven't got flush and I had to give up the newspaper route to protect my eligibility for Social Security. I still owe Duffy 1,347 copies of the Port Huron Times Herald.

While nostalgizing, I remembered that Duffy is about seven foot tall and I immediately thought, columnist Beltaire should hear how my late dad once introduced Duffy to a friend. "This is George Duffy," Dad said, "the only railroad owner in the world who is longer than his track."

Then I returned to Beltaire's column and discovered that, by gosh, he had heard about Dad's wisecrack. There it was, in print for the first time. But Beltaire credited it to "Eddie Fitzgerald of the Lapeer Fitzgeralds."

And that's when I felt the pang. There is an Eddie Fitzgerald who lives in Lapeer but he is not my father; he's my son. The Eddie Fitzgerald who knew George Duffy never lived in Lapeer. He was "of the Port Huron Fitzgeralds" and he never lived anywhere else in all his 71 years. His swinging widow still lives there, pretending she was his daughter.

All of which is a small mistake, and certainly understandable. Writing this weekly nonsense has gained me a certain amount of notoriety and "the Lapeer Fitzgeralds" has a valid enough ring to it, I suppose. But it makes me feel uncomfortable, like a usurper of the throne.

My father was quite a guy and I've always been pleased to be recognized as his son. I love to be told that I look like him. To me, it could never be right that he be remembered as my father. He accomplished a lot more important things than to help produce me, as any of my four sisters would be quick to tell you.

Dad wouldn't be miffed by Beltaire's mistake in geography. He'd just laugh. On the other hand, he'd be madder than hell to learn about me gyping George Duffy. Just thinking about his anger makes me feel like a little boy.

Which isn't a bad way to feel. I guess I just want to be my father's son for a few more years, anyway.

Make way for my youth.

New International Gasoline Introduced In Michigan

Alma, Michigan — A new gasoline, TOTAL, is being introduced today in northern Michigan at more than 200 former Leonard service stations throughout the area. The conversion is a part of a statewide change for Leonard service station dealers which totals more than 600 stations throughout Michigan.

TOTAL is an internationally known brand of petroleum products, refined & marketed in 54 countries of the world. Leonard Refineries, Inc., Alma, has been licensed to refine and market TOTAL petroleum products in Michigan and adjoining states.

In addition to the name change, TOTAL dealers will be dispensing new, improved premium and regular gasolines, including a new TOTAL Low Lead gasoline priced below regular to help curb pollution. Local TOTAL dealers are participating in the changeover to the new brand with special gifts tied in with the international theme of TOTAL.

Backing up the TOTAL introduction will be a massive advertising campaign featuring the TOTAL message in newspapers, television and radio.

Leonard was established in 1936 and markets petroleum products in Michigan and Wisconsin. It also operates petroleum terminals in Detroit, Lansing, Bay City, Traverse City and Alma.

Here Comes Graduated Tax Again

It appears that the price for at least temporary peace in the Michigan tax muddle will be another statewide vote on a graduated income tax.

That's the tag placed on it by the Democrats in the Michigan Legislature, and it seems that enough Republicans are willing to pay that price to restore at least temporary order to our mixed up state government house.

Coupled with the graduated income tax vote, apparently, will be replacement of property taxes as the base for financing local schools. Or at least, this is the way it looked the last time we stole a peek at the happenings under the capitol dome.

A graduated income tax has long been a basic tenet of Democratic platforms in Michigan, following the thesis that the more an individual earns, the higher rate of income tax he should pay—just like on the federal level.

The 1963 state constitution bans a graduated rate on income taxes, so to change our present flat-rate system with a graduated system would require a change in the constitution, which must be approved by the voters.

The issue has come up before. Back in 1968, the same question was voted upon, and the graduated income tax idea was buried under an avalanche of votes. The vote was 614,826 yes, and 2,025,052 no. The issue failed in every county, including the bastion of the Michigan Democratic party, Wayne County, where it flopped 561,000 to 190,000.

But still, the Democrats are insisting that the people should decide again. About the only explanation I've heard is that back in 1968, the people really didn't understand what they were voting on; if that's true, it's one of the grossest cases of misunderstanding on anybody's record.

Be that as it may be, the question apparently will come before us once again. Just because it failed miserably four years ago is no sign it would fail again this time.

A lot of voters can change their minds in four years, and the United Auto Workers just recently gave priority attention to push for a change in the state constitution to permit the levy of a graduated income tax. Anytime the UAW really pushes for something in Michigan, they can be effective. And so it may well be this next time around on a graduated income tax.

Consider, for example, this claim: Nat Weinberg, director of UAW special projects, is quoted as saying the graduated income tax could reduce taxes for 85 percent of Michigan's taxpayers.

Now, if that story is accurate, and if it gets across to the 85 percent of taxpayers who would be paying less, then the outcome of a popular vote could be quite different, indeed.

Mind you, the total tax load would not go down 85 percent; it would be going up quite a bit instead. But the Weinberg figures mean that 15 percent of the taxpayers would be paying a whole of a lot more in state taxes, while the 85 percent would be paying less. And in our election system, 85 percent usually outvotes 15 percent—except maybe in Chicago.

So we may as well trot out the constitutional amendment one more time. Maybe we can bury it once and for all. As a taxpayer, I'm strongly opposed to a graduated state income tax, which would be installed on top of the steeply graduated federal income tax, and—we presume—in between another graduated local income tax.

Any new graduated state income tax certainly would be adopted at a low rate; so was the federal tax a half-century or more ago. But look what's happened to it since!

And you can be certain that if 85 percent of the taxpayers receive an immediate tax reduction under a graduated system, the relief won't last. As the needs of government grow and grow as they are bound to do, the tax system will certainly start reaching more and more people, with the same results we have seen on the federal level.

A graduated tax system is like a rattlesnake; it may provide some immediate relief by eating those pesky mosquitoes, but it's not something you'd fool around with.

They Said It Like This...

Continued dependance upon relief induces a spiritual and moral distegration fundamentally destructive to the national fibre.

PUNCH LINE OF THE WEEK

Thought For Food

Overly sweet snacks can take away desire for the next meal and promote tooth decay since immediate brushing of teeth may not be possible. Consider snacks part of the total food eaten in a day. Plan nutritious snacks as you do regular meals.

To quench a summer thirst, try cherry punch. Add 1/2 teaspoon almond extract and 1/2 cup maraschino cherry syrup to 2 quarts cold milk. Fold in 1 quart cherry-vanilla or vanilla ice cream until almost melted. Add 1 cup chopped maraschino cherries and float 1 quart cherry-vanilla or vanilla ice cream by spoonfuls on top of the punch. Serve at once. Makes about 4 quarts, or 32 punch cups servings.

Any homemaker who has at one time overcooked a piece of meat knows it's difficult to slice. Overcooked meats do not slice. They seem to fall apart in shreds. For a roast, it's easy to chart doneness with a roast meat thermometer. After cooking to the degree desired, let the roast "rest" to become firm enough for slicing. That takes about 20 minutes.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am a boy, 15 years old, and I have a problem. This last winter I met a girl who is 13 years old. I love her very much. During the winter we dated, and she liked me very much. Then one day she told me she had found someone else. I have discovered that, if she found someone else, she never has a date or even talks with him. I have written her letters asking what happened between us, and if she would please go with me again. She doesn't write back. I really love her. What can I do to get her back?"

OUR REPLY: If you do not remember doing anything to cause the break-up and she fails to answer your letters, resign yourself to the fact that she just gave you the brush-off in a nice way. If she decided she no longer likes you, there is no formula you can use to make her like you again. She may even dislike you more if you continue to send letters. If you have told her you still like her, leave it that way for a while and if you have a teenage problem, you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

YOUR WORLD

If we do not take the time to think and to observe, it is quite easy to agree with those who cry out that the "world has gone to the dogs."

It is still a good world. Even though much changed from a generation ago—from twenty years ago. We have now a world which is heavily populated. We have modern conveniences and methods of communications our ancestors would not believe in the realm of possibility. Because we have more people, we have more problems. Because of modern communications, no area of the world is isolated. Whatever happens can be "told" to the rest of the world in short order.

Can we excuse away the problems of our age so simply? Of course not. We must meet them, locally, nationally, internationally. The wrong way is to ignore the "wrong" things we see in the world about us on the premise that "that's the way things are today."

Make your personal world a better world. That's a very good place to start.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMER

From George Morring, Sherman Oaks, Calif.: The recent disaster in a Kentucky coal mine brings to mind a gas explosion in a large West Virginia mine, near Clarksburg, that happened about 1902. Some 400 men were killed.

It was a popular assumption in those days that the coal in West Virginia was inexhaustible. The B&O Railroad burned coal in their locomotives. Steamboats all burned coal and coal was hauled out of the state in solid train loads and floated down the Ohio River in barges 6' deep and about 60' long.

I remember that the B&O crossing the Ohio River at Parkersburg was supported by a number of stone piers in the river. A large tow boat, towing 50 barges, tried to negotiate passage between the two piers, lost control and struck the pier, sinking a number of barges and turning the entire fleet loose. The old Nina Paden, a ferry boat operating between Parkersburg and the Ohio shore, was pressed into service, along with other river craft, to bring things under control.

Letters of Interest

Mr. Walter Conner
Chrm., Crawford Co.
Democratic Party
200 Chestnut St.
Grayling, Mich. 49738

Dear Walt:
Public hearings are scheduled to begin July 26 before the House Interior Committee on H.R. 7211 about which I wrote you. This legislation is intended to formulate the broad Congressional objectives, principles and purposes in implementing the recommendations of the Public Land Law Review Commission. On payments in lieu of taxes, H.R. 7211 contains on p. 4, Sec. 2 (a) (1) the following language:

The sharing with States and counties of receipts derived from the sale of public lands or the products of public lands bears no relationship to the burdens imposed on State and local governments by retention of public lands in Federal ownership; and that the expansion of the policy of retention of additional public lands in Federal ownership requires that the national public bear the burden of Federal ownership and generally replace the programs of sharing receipts by a program or programs to make payments to States that will compensate State and local governments for the burdens imposed by such continued Federal ownership of public lands.

With this I think most of us in Michigan would agree. Once this basic legislation is approved by the Congress (amended as it may be in the process) then Interior Committee Chairman Aspinall will turn to the particulars, and go into them in more detail, looking to solutions.

Rest assured I will follow this legislation very closely, in order to safeguard the interests of the many communities in our State that have been affected by large acreage in Federal ownership.

Sincerely,
Philip A. Hart

ROTC Cadets Experience Camp Life

MICHIGAN NATIONAL GUARDSMEN call out the cadence as a platoon of High School ROTC cadets from Detroit become oriented to military life at Camp Grayling. The 88 cadets, ranging from 14 to 16 years of age, will get a first-hand look at all phases of military life as part of this new training program.

(Special to Avalanche)

The Michigan National Guard put one of its best feet forward this week in an unprecedented effort to impress 88 teenaged ROTC cadets from Detroit, some of whom may one day become Guardsmen themselves.

The foot belonged to Brigadier General Floyd W. Radike, Director of security operations and training of the Guard, who personally welcomed the uniformed junior troops to Camp Grayling at the beginning of their week's stay in the north country.

Gen. Radike pulled no punches. "I suppose we wanted you up here even more than you wanted to come, and this week we're going to try to prove this to you."

"This is a good place and a hard place. We hope that after you take a look at us, many of you will think about joining the Guard," the General said.

The week of military orientation which began for the youths after a three hour bus trip Sunday is an experimental program being tried for the first time ever this year.

Under this plan, cadets from high school ROTC programs get a look at real military operations by observing the different branches of the National Guard in action.

Most of the 88 cadets, ranging from 14 to 16 years of age, are from inner city Detroit schools. So the encampment serves a two fold purpose: It gives them their orientation to the military while at the same time giving them a chance to be in the beautiful country surrounding Camp Grayling.

As a side result, but no less important, is the Guard's hope that through its efforts this week, it may kindle a spark in a few young men who may some day soon be officers in the National Guard.

Gen. Radike explained the need for dedicated officers in the future of the Guard. "We need all the officers we can get," he said.

Why join the Guard? Gen. Radike explained it this way to the assembled troops. "It's difficult, you'll find a need for many and varied skills in running this operation, it's fun sometimes, it's challenging, and above all, it's necessary."

The cadets will be housed for the week in tents along side the regular troops of the 156 Signal Battalion, the host unit for the week.

The young soldiers, who have already received some military training in their schools, will have an opportunity to see and learn much during the week.

They will spend one day with the engineers, one with the armor, one with the artillery and a day at the range firing small arms, machine guns and rocket launchers.

The end of their week will come when they march in the annual Review and Ceremonies Friday with the rest of the 8,000 troops of the Michigan National Guard.

Michigan Governor William G. Milliken will be among the officials on the reviewing stand as the young ROTC cadets march by.

Trees Soak Up Noise

By Willard Bosserman
County Extension Director

Trees soak up noise, break the wind and create cool shade. They provide a home for wildlife and food for both man and animals.

In northern Michigan we become so accustomed to trees all around us that we do not realize some of the important things trees do for us. All too often we clear all of the trees off a lot when we build. Later we wish some of the trees were back so we could have some shade. Shade is air conditioning, because the shade of trees does help keep us cool.

But let's get back to the role trees can play in keeping our environment quieter. Cars, motor bikes and many other noise makers keep things stirring in the summer. Snowmobiles keep things jumping in the winter.

A row of trees planted as a wind break can act as a noise barrier. The trees do not have to be planted in a row, however but can be more artistically arranged to look more natural.

Lower growing bushes and shrubbery can be worked into the landscape to deaden the sound and to add to the aesthetics of your home.

Trees act as a vacuum cleaner too. The leaves collect much dust that is floating through the air. The dust is then deposited on the soil as the leaves drop in the fall, or is washed to the ground when it rains.

Diversity of plants helps to stabilize natural systems. This is nature's way of a continual cover. Diseases and insects are less damaging when there is a variety of plants growing.

I enjoy the natural landscape of my lot. There must be a hundred different kinds of plants growing on this one small piece of land.

If one species is wiped out with an insect or disease little note is made because there are ninety nine other kinds of plants ready to fill the void.

I do supplement the natural with some domestic plants to add to the variety and color.

You can help make your home a quieter, cooler and more beautiful place to live by utilizing trees, shrubs, grass and other plants.

We have bulletins on landscaping and making lawns which will help you.

Jack Pine's Stump

One of the great pleasures of my life is golf. Now this may seem strange indeed to those who have played the miserable game with me, but nevertheless it is true. I like it, but only if I can play with people who don't take the game as though every stroke is a final plea to avoid eternal damnation. That type bugs me. I am fortunate, though, and usually manage to play with people who have fun. I'll be darned if I'm going to hit a ball some 50 to 60 times, chase it all over a course, in the woods, over the road, and in the water — and have to listen to some sorehead to boot. At any rate, one of the most unusual and fun-type games was Saturday. For some reason I had managed to stagger through a few opponents in a handicap tournament and found myself facing a golfer of awesome prowess and a relatively low handicap. Mine was quite high. My opponent is a good friend who does electrical things for the Big Phone Company, and he had it figured out that if he could play me very early in the morning after a Friday night spent in his company, he might take me. And a Friday night in his company has got to be one of the greatest challenges Crawford County has ever known. After several noisy hours I gave up, after making a solemn promise to meet him for breakfast at seven sharp. I don't know how I did it, but I was there by 7. He wasn't, so I called. "Where the hell are you?" I asked. "Where are you?" he asked back, then asked who I was. I told him. "I forfeit," he said. "No, you don't, you play." "You don't know how I feel, Jack." "Oh, yes I do. I feel the same." "You paid those guys to keep me up all night. I'm not well. Please let me forfeit." "No way," I answered, "you're gonna play." "You dirty ! ? ! " he said and hung up. So play we did, and if there was ever a more comical game played in Grayling than that one, I didn't hear about it. Somehow we managed to get around nine holes, but not well. I never had more fun nor suffered so much in one two hour period. It was one of those affairs one couldn't ever repeat — or want to.

— JP — In the clubhouse afterwards a couple of guys in Bermuda shorts came in and signed up to play. They asked if there was a clergyman's discount. There wasn't, but you can't blame them for trying. We got into a joking conversation with them, and one remarked that he really had a pretty good job. "I only work one day a week, and only one hour that day. Even that's too long." That's a pretty rare clergyman. They should have given him a discount.

— JP — Recently I was going through a mess of trash and near-trash. It was sort of weird. A crayon picture drawn many years ago by a youngster in first grade, a torn photograph taken in Texas, a early record by the Beatles, and an even earlier one by Chubby Checkers, worshipped by children long since grown. School books, both mine and the kids, a whistle once used as a stocking stuffer at Christmas, an instruction manual for a wretched mini-bike we had six years ago. A fraternity beer stein from Cornell University, dated 1941, a figure I had made using horseshoe nails and an acetylene welder. A religious statue my mother had given us years ago, and an old prayer book for Catholic rituals long since discarded. One by one I picked them up, let the memories flicker past and put them in the "keep" or "junk" piles. Not much junk, I'm afraid. Memories are beautiful and it is pleasant to quietly slip into the past and rest the mind.

— JP — The Centennial year is approaching, and plans are being made for the biggest and the best. I am happy to report that our esteemed Editor and Publisher has developed a fine dignified beard. Down the street a way, Mac the Druggist has successfully passed the first two weeks of itching and is developing a massive face-ful of hair, over which his eyes peep out, begging tolerance and understanding. Now Editor Whitey with his beard, could pass for an eminent psychiatrist, but I don't know about Mac. Maybe he could be the patient. (That could be why he shaved it. Ed. Note)

Corwin Cousin Reunion Held

The third annual Corwin Cousin reunion was held at the old Corwin Homestead on E. Four Mile Road, August 7, where many picnics and reunions have been held, since the turn of the century.

It was well represented by all of the families other than the Charles Corwins, which have the largest lineage and the poorest attendance record.

The oldest present was Howard Granger of Kalkaska, the youngest was Stanley Paul Bouck of Pontiac.

Ken and Ruth and boys of Gladwin, as usual were present with their famous homemade ice cream, which was enjoyed by all, and as an added surprise and enjoyment of all, drove their 1914 Model T up from Gladwin.

Isa Russell asked to resign as secretary and Ruby Granger was elected to replace her. Thanks to Isa for a job well done in helping to get the reunion organized and on the go, otherwise the same officers were kept, and the same date was set for next year, the first Saturday of August. It is the hope of myself and others, this family group can be kept together, to meet and get reacquainted thru the years to come. There are only 24 out of 30 remaining of our generation, two having passed on in the last year, Emerson Corwin, on December 12, 1970 and Viva Hoesli Schneider, on July 3, 1971.

There were 68 present that registered, and lets all try for a larger turn out next year. Thanks to all who helped to make this a success, and to the Yogi Bear Trailer Park for the use of their equipment.

President, Everett E. and Harriett Corwin ional Guard related. To date, he added, "there's not a dime of federal or state money in it."

The final fund drive, will give all the troops currently training at the camp a chance to contribute right in the pay line, the last day of camp.

Entirely voluntary, suggested contributions can amount to one day's pay per man for the recognized, tax deductible charity.

And the money spent will be working triple time, the Chaplain said. Such a structure built privately could easily cost upwards of $350,000, he said. The cost cutter, he said, is that Guardsmen will be able to make use of their areas of expertise.

Virtually all of the building materials from the roofing to the stonework in the modernistic structure are Michigan products.

The chapel is also much more than a chapel alone, Chaplain Kirchenbauer said. The basement will house three offices for chaplains' counseling and another office for the Red Cross. There will also be a conference room with television studio possibilities.

The conference room, to be equipped with the latest audio visual equipment, is slated to be used for chaplains' instruction, character guidance programs, various activities by dependents of Guardsmen and auxiliaries.

Other planned usages include amphitheatre-type band concerts and other outdoor activities.

The interior of the chapel is designed to be completely flexible for use by almost any religious denomination. The flexibility is attributed to movable stack-type chairs instead of permanently affixed pews and a movable chancel, on which will be the pulpit, lecturn and altar.

The construction schedule calls for completion by the time troops arrive at camp next summer. The basic structure, walls and roof, are to be finished by the time the snow falls.
